

M.Sc in Wildlife Biology and Conservation

Why is this course unique?

- Faculty of eminent scientists and practitioners in wildlife conservation
- Excellent facilities and vibrant research community at the campus of the the National Center for Biological Sciences, Bangalore
- Studentships that cover fees and living expenses

Selection process?

A written aptitude test in about 30 centres in India on the 13th of December 2015 and a personal interview with shortlisted candidates in May 2016.

Who can apply?

Indian graduates in any discipline (with minimum of 50% in core subjects), less than 35 years of age as on July 1, 2015. Graduate nationals of Central, South and Southeast Asian countries with similar qualifications are also eligible to apply. Those in final year of undergraduate degree and above can apply.

How to apply?

Online at
<https://admissions.ncbs.res.in/information/>
Email mscwildlife@ncbs.res.in

This Program is collaboration among the National Centre for Biological Sciences (NCBS), the Centre for Wildlife Studies (CWS) Bangalore, and Wildlife Conservation Society (WCS-New York).

The mandate of National Centre for Biological Sciences (NCBS), is fundamental research in the frontier areas of biology. The Wildlife Conservation Society is a science based conservation organization with the mission of saving wildlife and wild places. Centre for Wildlife Studies practices science-based conservation, with special emphasis on ecology and conservation of the tiger and other large mammals.

Last date of application: 10 Oct 2015

